A Hug in the Hallway

David Cortese - School Principal

As we prepare for another school year, I keep coming back to one simple truth: this school isn't just part of our parish, it's one of the most beautiful ways our parish loves people.

I have been reflecting on this throughout summer school. For the last five weeks, students have been back in these halls — a smaller, quieter version of the school year, but full of the same spirit. Just this morning, I watched a brand-new TK student, someone who's barely had a handful of days here, run away from his mom and wrap Denise, our Office Manager, up in a hug on his way in the door. He's not even old enough to know what our mission statement says. He just knows this is a place where he's loved, and that's enough to make him run toward it instead of away from it. That's the whole thing, really — five weeks or five years in, this school feels like home.

Our parish preaches the Gospel on Sundays, and our school gets to live it out every day in between — in a hug in the hallway, in a teacher who stays late for a struggling student, in a staff member who arrives before the sun comes up because she loves these kids like her own. That kind of love isn't rare here — it's the norm. It's in the small, unglamorous choices people make every day, choices that don't make it into a newsletter but that a child will remember for the rest of their life. That's exactly the kind of love our parish is planting in these children every day.

I don't know exactly what these students' lives will look like ten or twenty years from now. But I know what I hope for them: that when they face a hard decision, some part of them remembers how to choose kindness. That when life knocks them down, they know how to get back up without losing themselves. That when they're tired and unsure, they turn toward Christ instead of away from Him — not because we told them to, but because these years here made it feel natural. That's what we're actually building, one ordinary day at a time.

To our whole parish family: thank you for making this ministry possible. The love you pour into this school doesn't stay behind our doors — it grows up, walks into your pews, and carries this parish's faith into the next generation.

Summer Ministries

• Children's Liturgy of the Word (CLOW) is offered year-round during the Sunday 9:00 AM and 10:30 AM Masses. Children are invited to hear and reflect on the Sunday Gospel in an age-appropriate setting before returning to the assembly for the Liturgy of the Eucharist.

• Baptismal Preparation Classes are held on the second Tuesday of each month at the Parish Office for parents preparing to have their child baptized. Please contact the parish office for registration and additional information.

Looking Ahead

Planning continues for the 2026–2027 Faith Formation year. Registration information for our children's and youth faith formation programs will be announced soon. Please continue to watch the parish bulletin, website, and parish communications for updates.
